Public Administration jobs rank highly in Canada's 100 Best Jobs

Canadian Business Magazine recently ranked the 100 "Best Jobs" in Canada, and ranking high in the list were numerous public administration and public service jobs. At #2 sat Public Administration Director with a median income of $97,074, 21% 5-year wage growth, and 21% 5-year job growth.

To build the list of Canada's 100 Best Jobs, data was taken from Statistics Canada, including jobs that had experienced employment growth over the past five years, had a minimum median salary of $60,000 and employed at least 5,000 people. Rankings are based on four criteria: employment growth (25%), median compensation (based on a 40-hour workweek) in 2013 (40%), the change in median compensation from 2007–08 to 2012–13 (10%), and projected demand for those jobs using data from Human Resources and Skills Development Canada (25%). (The complete ranking can be found here: <http://www.canadianbusiness.com/lists-and-rankings/best-jobs/2014-full-ranking-canada-100-best-jobs/>).

While “Lawyer” ranked first on the list, it should be noted that the median salary of Public Administration Directors sits well above that of the average Lawyer. Other notable public administration and public policy careers that ranked high on the list were “Government Program Officer” at #14 and “Education Policy Researchers/Consultants” at #22.

Seminars / Workshops

“The meaning of ‘home’ in prolonged conditions of displacement”

Presented by: Giorgia Dona, Monday May 5, 12-2pm, 140 McLaughlin College (Senior Common Room)

McLaughlin College Lunch Talk Series

An increased number of forced migrants experience forced immobility and prolonged displacements as a result of restrictive reception policies, securitization of migration and changing migration patterns.

In this talk, Professor Doná will use Bauman’s framework of solid and liquid modernity to examine the changing meanings of home and home-making practices in limbo. She will explain how the normalization of ‘prolonged conditions of displacement’ reveals the inconsistencies that exist in the global system of nation-states in the transition from solid to liquid modernity and how much there is a need to rethink the multiple meanings of home and their complex relationship at a time of liquid modernity.

She will also examine the tension that emerges between state-centered perspectives that conflate territorial, temporal and bureaucratic meanings of home associated with solid modernity and people-centered perspectives that challenge these meanings within the framework of liquid modernity.

Giorgia Doná is Professor of Forced Migration and Refugee Studies at the University of East London in the United Kingdom and Fellow of the UK Higher Education Academy. She received her BA in Psychology (magna cum laude) from the University of Padova, Italy, MA and PhD in Cross-cultural Psychology from Queen’s University, Canada, and MPhil in Social Anthropology from Cambridge University, UK.

Professor Doná has held positions at the Refugee Studies Program of the University of Oxford, United Kingdom, the Child Studies Unit of University College Cork, Ireland, and the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Rwanda.

Her research focuses on refugee adaptation and well-being, child and youth forced migration, ethnic violence and reconciliation, psycho-social humanitarian assistance, and participatory research methodologies.

Why can't politics solve Canada's problems?

I'll bet a tart reply is at the tip of your tongue. But you're not a Member of Parliament. They're the ones who craft the laws, direct the dollars, and pledge the loyalty. So why is their respect, popularity and usefulness so low? How did one of the world's most functional democracies go so wrong?

Alison Loat and Michael MacMillan, co-founders of the think tank, Samara, interviewed 80 former MPs and came up with some surprising observations about how politics is practiced in Canada.

Their new book, Tragedy in the Commons, asks: "What exactly do we want our Members of Parliament to be doing?"

Alison Loat and Michael MacMillan will speak at the Ramsay Breakfast on Tuesday, May 6. So please join us and in doing so, vote to get to the bottom of what's wrong at the top.

When: Tuesday, May 6, 2014

Breakfast: 7:30 a.m.- 8:00 a.m.

Food for Thought: 8:00 a.m. - 8:40 a.m.

Questions & Answers: 8:40 a.m.

Done and Gone: 8:59 a.m.

Where: The University Club - 380 University Avenue, Toronto

Call for Papers / Proposals

Policy & Politics Conference 2014

The challenges of leadership and collaboration in the 21st Century

Bristol Marriot Royal Hotel, College Green, Bristol

16th-17th September 2014

Call for papers deadline May 31, 2014:

The recent global financial crisis and associated austerity measures have led to a reconfiguration of the role of the state and a fundamental reshaping in the design and delivery of public services.

State and non-state actors are struggling to cope with the scale of change, the speed with which adjustments are being made and managing a range of 'wicked issues' in the absence of necessary resources. In this uncertain environment, policy issues and objectives are often ill-defined, constantly shifting and lack clear direction. There is also huge variability in the coping strategies and creative responses being enacted by public leaders in different contexts.

Partnerships, co-production and networks have been viewed as an antidote to the 'ungovernability' of complex issues in public and social policy. However, collaborative governance is also fraught with difficulties and pitfalls and raise questions about legitimacy, accountability and social justice. Within this context, the 2014 conference seeks to address questions around the themes of leadership and collaboration. We ask participants to interpret this call broadly but some key questions might include:

- What scope is there for creative leadership in contemporary policy and politics?
- How can leadership and/or collaboration drive innovation in the design and delivery of public services?
- What capacity do non-state actors have to influence policy and politics?
- What impact can leadership and collaboration have on legitimacy, accountability and social justice in public policy?
- What are the challenges for public leadership and collaboration in a global context?

Papers are invited in any areas of public or social policy. In writing their papers authors are re-requested to reflect on the conference theme.
