On November 17, 2016 the School of Public Policy & Administration (SPPA) held its annual Student, Alumni and Community Recognition Awards Dinner, which serves as a formal thank-you for the dedication of all those whose volunteer efforts have enriched the learning experience and extra-curricular activities of our students.

Professor Alena Kimakova, SPPA Director, opened the event with reflections on the value of service to the School, its undergraduate and graduate student body, learning outcomes, practical experience and ultimately the professional development of both the student beneficiaries and the volunteers because the engagement offers learning and growth for all those involved. With nearly 80 guests in attendance, including students, alumni and faculty members, the evening offered an opportunity for stimulating discussions on the meaning and challenges of professional, non-partisan public service that the School prepares its students for in collaboration with its alumni and other partners in the broader public sector.

Victor Severino, a returning York alumnus (BA Specialized Honours in Public Policy & Administration, class of 1988) and currently Assistant Deputy Minister of the Business Climate and Funding Administration Division of the Ontario Ministry of Economic Development and Growth and the Ministry of Research, Innovation and Science offered his Reflections on a public service career in (partial) review as the evening’s keynote address. Victor discussed, among other aspects of his career in the Ontario Public Service, strategic policy relating to investment, trade negotiations and economic development. Victor is also Ontario’s Chief Negotiator for the Canada-EU Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement (CETA) and the Agreement on Internal Trade (AIT), a volunteer with a number of organizations including the Institute of Public Administration of Canada (IPAC) and most recently a part of the School’s own innovative mentorship circle pilot program.

Following the keynote address, several awards were presented to exceptional individuals for their dedication and leadership in the following categories:

Undergraduate Student Award to Melissa Calanza, Bachelor of Public Administration Hon./International Development Studies minor (Class of 2016).

A passionate student leader and peer mentor, Melissa currently works for the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care, Digital Health Solutions and Innovation Branch, Project Management Office. Melissa is also the recipient of the 2016 McLaughlin Academics Choice Award. At the School’s celebration she was accompanied by her proud parents, Mon and Felisa Calanza.
Graduate Student Award to Georgette Morris, Master of Public Policy, Administration and Law (Class of 2016).

Professor Dagmar Soennecken, Director of the MPPAL program, presented the Award to Georgette for all of her volunteering with the Graduate Students’ Association and for fostering the interaction between our undergraduate and MPPAL students. Georgette’s professional career spans positions from municipal government (City of Mississauga, City of Brampton) to the federal public service (Citizenship and Immigration Canada, Service Canada). At the same time, she is also a long-standing and avid volunteer with a number of non-profit organizations.

Alumni Award to Kevin Giddings, Master of Public Policy, Administration and Law (Class of 2015).

Professor Kimakova highlighted that Kevin Giddings only strengthened his engagement with the School following his graduation. He is a tireless supporter not only of the MPPAL program, but also of our undergraduate BPA and Professional Certificate programs in a variety of ways. Kevin has been employed with the Ontario Public Service (OPS) for over 15 years and currently works as a Project Policy Analyst in the Emergency Health Services Branch of the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care.

Practicum Honouree Award to Sharon Walker, Manager, Emergency Planning, City of Vaughan.

Professor Peter Constantinou, the School’s Experiential Education Coordinator, presented the Award to Sharon Walker for her enthusiastic support of our experiential education initiatives and the opportunities she has provided to our 4th year undergraduate students in the form of a practicum placement and a hands-on program evaluation project integrated into our courses.
High-School Essay Contest Award to Saba Manzoor, Turner Fenton High School, International Baccalaureate Program, Brampton.

On the occasion of Canada’s upcoming 150th anniversary, the School and its undergraduate Public Policy and Administration Student Association (PPASA) issued a call this year to high school students to share their Vision for Canada’s Next 150 Years. Munisha Basiram, PPASA President and Professor Kimakova presented the award to Saba for her thoughtful and inspiring essay titled Cognitive Capital and the Role of Policy Development. While only in grade 12 in high school, Saba already has an impressive track record of volunteer engagement and leadership. The SPPA community embraced her accomplishment and the promise she shows with a great deal of excitement.

The evening of celebration concluded with remarks by Robert Haché, Vice-President Research & Innovation and Adriano Mena, the evening’s Master of Ceremonies, recipient of the 2014 SPPA Alumni Award and tireless supporter of our students and programs. We hope to have inspired junior students, returning alumni and first-time event participants to be engaged with the School and make meaningful contributions to our student community in a variety of ways.

The next call for nominations for the SPPA Student, Alumni and Community Awards will open in January 2017.

School of Public Policy and Administration Professor is the Editor of a New Handbook on Global Public Policy and Administration

Professor Thomas Klassen, from the School of Public Policy & Administration in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies (LA&PS), is the lead editor of, and a contributor to, a new comprehensive, leading-edge guide for students, scholars and practitioners of public policy and administration. His book, The Routledge Handbook of Global Public Policy and Administration, surveys trends and reforms in the field, such as financial regulation, risk management, corruption, public health, e-government and much more at the local, national and international levels. The 43 scholars and public administrators who contributed chapters to the handbook have a combined total of 1,000 years of know-how and wisdom in their respective areas. The authors are based in, and write about, all regions of the world, including Africa, Australia, Asia, the Americas and Europe. A running theme throughout the book is that the politicians who create public policies, and public administrators who implement them, must pay greater attention than in the past to the regional, national and global context. “When we started, it seemed impossible to write a book that covered developments in many disparate countries and regions,” says Klassen. “Yet, it quickly became apparent that politicians, administrators and citizens in all regions struggle with the same problems: how to regulate in the public interest, how to ensure high quality public services and how to foster collaboration between public administrators, individual citizens and other groups.”
